

Attention seeking barking

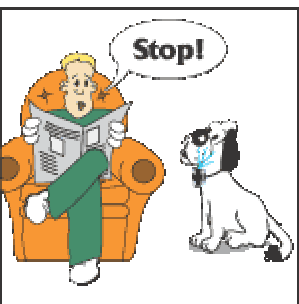

Barking for attention

Barking occur to obtain your attention. Your dog will bark in your presence. If he asks for attention, your dog will generally bark while you are busy, for example while your are watching TV, answering the phone or the door. Variations are possible.

Barking out of frustration

It may occur when your dog is prevented to do something. He could, for example, bark at an object out of reach, or at a dog who doesn't want to play.

Whether your dogs barks for attention or out of frustration, the procedure will basically be the same.

1- Use the command "Stop" each time he will receive the spray.

2- Once he received the spray, use a command as Come – Down – Stay and/or lead your dog towards a toy.

3- Reward your dog as soon as he stops barking. The waiting period between the spray and the reward must be increased slowly and gradually.

4- Verify your dog's behaviour without the collar as soon as the problem seems to be under control while he wears the device. Put the collar back on as needed if your dog fails to obey the command "Stop".

Each member of your family must adhere to these principles.

Your dog should receive attention only when he is calm and not when he asks for it. Show attention to your dog when he does not ask for it. Basic training and lots of exercise if also in need.
