

Stop Command

The "Stop" is used when the dog receives the hypo-allergenic spray. Without the device, it will become a warning. In this case, the dog will know that if he doesn't comply immediately, the Anti-Bark Spray Collar will be put back on. Just as the "Good dog", the "Stop" command identifies the exact moment of misbehavior. Eventually, he will cease his barking when you say "Stop", even without the Anti-Bark Spray Collar.

Example:

1- At exactly the same moment that your dog starts barking and receives the hypo-allergenic spray, say "Stop" in a firm, calm voice. Each barking must be associated with the "Stop" command and the hypo-allergenic spray.

2- If he responds to your command say "Good dog", followed by a reward of your choice (food, play, affection).

3- Repeat this exercise several times and increase time before rewarding gradually. A couple of seconds may be added at each cycle before offering a reward.

4- After a few days it's time to remove the device in order to see what your dog has learned. Check his behavior without collar as soon as he stops barking on command ("Stop"). However, if he continues to bark, you'll have to put back the device.

5- As soon as your dog is able to wait for quite some time, decrease the use of rewards! Offer a reward every second time, then every third time and so on, until rewards become optional. From now on, only sporadically reinforce correct behavior, i.e. no barking, with special rewards. These will help you keep up your dog's motivation to be silent.

6-By proceeding with good dog and stop, your dog will stop at the sight of the device. The training is successful! You want to firmly establish the following association: "If I bark when master says, "Stop", I'll have to wear the collar".
